

ABSTRACT

A method is described that includes receiving a software module, the software module including references, at least some of the references being backward references; and reordering the software module to remove at least some of the backward references. The method may be used in conjunction with a linker/loader to facilitate sequential linking and loading of the software module.